Message from the President

— Mary Sedillo, CP

Celebrating Differences.

A Happy New Year to everyone on behalf of the Nevada Paralegal Association (“NPA”).

A new year comes with a chance for self-reflection; for some, this may be a written laundry list of goals, and for others, this may be internal self-promises for improvements.

A new year also comes with a review of relationships - all kinds - including those with your family, friends, co-workers, and others.

In the “other” category are organizational relationships such as NPA.

NPA is comprised of paralegals, students and other members of the legal community. We tend to associate with individuals who are like-minded, those who share a commonality with the group. Although this is a good quality for success, it is also necessary to entertain ideas that are different from the group dynamic.

When it comes to NPA, our ideas and differences are the key to our success - the butter on the bread, the champagne that makes us proud to be a part of this organization.

My goal for the New Year is to welcome, accept, and celebrate the differences in each of us.

For 2012, I hope to hear new voices and ideas from all of the legal community in which NPA interacts, through the General Meetings and Seminars, as well as input from members and attendees. This input, including constructive criticism, will have a beneficial effect on the Association. The many facets can only complement our organization and promote its growth and success.

Leadership Tip: Always Take The High Road

Vicki Voisin, ACP

The High Road is the path to leadership success. What is The High Road? Where do you find it?

The High Road is a leadership style that includes doing what is best for all of your members, always staying above the fray and never stooping to someone else's lower level. If you're on The High Road, you will handle sticky situations in a kind and ethical manner, not with retaliation and revenge.

Here are some tips for traveling The High Road:

Understand your organization's goals and values. If you take The High Road, you must have a clear understanding of the goals of your association. What is its mission? What is its long range plan for the next five or ten years? What are the needs and wants of your members?

As a leader, you must focus on these goals and values. Don't lose your focus and start chasing the goals of another organization. What they're doing is not your concern. Your job is to steer your association toward its own goals and meet your members' needs.

Don't waste your time and energy worrying about what other associations are doing. On The High Road, all of your time and energy should be focused on your own association. Every association is different and chooses a different path for delivery of programs and services to its members. So long as you are meeting the needs of your members to the best of your association's abilities, within its budget and according to industry standards, you are doing your job.

Learn how to handle criticism. Every leader will be criticized at some point. When you're on The High Road, you will listen carefully. Is it deserved? Does the person doing the criticizing have all the facts and background information? Give this careful thought. Weigh it. Leaders should have more information than anyone else about any particular situation...or should get it. This information is used to make the best decisions for all members. If the criticism warrants change, make the changes. If not, stay on your path.

Do the right thing. Leaders taking The High Road will set a good example and have the highest moral ethics. Remember that leaders are in the spotlight most of the time. They rise above gossip and petty behavior. While it may be difficult to do the right thing under pressure...leaders are human do want to please their members!...it's imperative that a leader handle pressure situations with class and dignity.

Don't be drawn into insignificant and pointless arguments. When someone pushes your buttons, your first inclination will be to push right back, to retaliate. A leader traveling The High Road won't escalate this situation with a negative response. You can't please 100% of the people 100% of the time. Your goal should be to do what is best for the whole.

My leadership experience has taught me that it's not always easy to take The High Road but it's something every leader should strive for. Taking The High Road requires confidence in your own abilities to lead, as well as confidence in the direction your association is taking. If you stay the course and follow The High Road you will achieve the best results for your members and your association during your term in office. Do you plan to travel The High Road?

NPA MEMBERSHIP BENEFITS

Whether you are a working paralegal, student in paralegal studies, or one who wishes to support the paralegal profession, your membership in NPA is valuable to you, NPA, and the paralegal profession. On a personal level, it offers an avenue for networking, continuing education, and personal professional growth. On a larger scale, it contributes to the development, growth, and strengthening of the paralegal profession as a whole.

We have seen some major upheavals in the legal profession over the last few years and have seen that NPA needs to be a stronger force in the paralegal and legal community. To that end, the NPA Board of Directors has unanimously decided to provide additional criteria to the membership application to include those people who are working in the legal field under the supervision of an attorney, but who may not currently be working as paralegals. Please review the new membership application on the NPA website at www.nevadaparalegal.org. We would love to have you join us.

NPA has also joined with the Clark County Bar Association (CCBA) to provide a dual-membership program, so that the NPA members can utilize the CCBA membership benefits. The CCBA application is attached to the NPA membership form.

Some of the other benefits of NPA membership are:

Monthly Meetings

A forum for the exchange of valuable information via interaction with other paralegals and presentations by scheduled speakers.

Professional Involvement

Rewards of participating in one or more of NPA's committees, should you choose to do so.

Networking Opportunities

Opportunities to network with other paralegals via face-to-face encounters at meetings and NPA sponsored events.

Reduced Rates

Significantly reduced rates for the annual seminar and any other NPA functions for which there may be a charge.

Members' Only Section Access

You get access to the members' only section of the NPA website which provides employment opportunities

National Association of Legal Assistants (NALA)

NPA is an affiliate of NALA. Members of NALA affiliated associations receive a waiver of the NALA registration fee should they decide to become NALA members—a savings of $15. As an affiliated association, NPA has free access to NALA NET for the most current information and case decisions affecting legal assistants. NALA NET is the only online network dedicated to this profession. Additionally, NALA members are eligible for reduced fees for NALA Campus and NALA Campus Live programs, CLA Short Course, and the Annual Convention courses.
